

The Raven and the Swan

Brad Richter

Swan

Raven

1 $\text{♩} = 72$

1

4

4

7

7

The Raven saw the Swan and became jealous of her beautiful feathers. Believing that the Swan's splendid white color came from her washing in the water in which she swam, the Raven left the neighborhood where he made his living, and moved to the lakes and pools where the Swan lived. He cleaned his black feathers endlessly in the pools, ignoring his hunger, but he could not change their color. The Raven soon died for lack of food.